

The use of unshielded AC power lines to carry high speed internet communications is a terrible application of technology. Such a service would both interfere with licensed radio services and receive interference from same. Frustration on the part of both licensed radio spectrum users and internet customers would result in an investigation who allowed such a flawed concept to go into operation.

Please do not approve this technology!